Our Skin Barrier

WHAT IS A SKIN BARRIER & HOW CAN WE SUPPORT IT?

The outermost layer of our skin is called the stratum corneum (within the epidermis) and serves as our skin's barrier. Not only is it the part of the skin that we see first, it is our first line of defense against environmental pollutants passing through and wreaking havoc on our skin. Pollution, toxic chemicals, irritants, UV rays and free radicals are all filtered by our barrier, assuming it is healthy. A damaged barrier leaves our skin vulnerable to these irritants, and our skin becomes inflamed, appears less healthy, and is visibly compromised.

Healthy Skin

A healthy skin barrier will help to block pollutants from entering.

Unhealthy Skin

An unhealthy barrier allows pollutants & toxins to enter, causing further problems.

Skincare Routine

What's the point of an exfoliant?

Do I need an eye cream?

Do toners really do anything?

1

CLEANSER - Cleansing is an essential step in your skincare routine. Cleanse every morning and evening to remove makeup, dirt, excess oil and pollution from the skin's surface.

2

TONER - Toners are important to help remove excess impurities left behind after cleansing. They also infuse the skin with natural vitamins and minerals. Use a toner morning and evening to set up the perfect canvas for makeup and product application.

3

EXFOLIANT - Exfoliation is great for all skin types. This important step speeds up the skin's renewal process by allowing new healthy cells to replace dead skin cells that dull the complexion. It helps prevent breakouts and soften fine lines and wrinkles. Exfoliate one to two times per week.

4

MASK - Masks have multiple functions depending on your skin care concerns. Masks can help draw out impurities, remove excess oil, minimize the appearance of pores and make your skin soft and supple. Use a mask one to two times per week.

5

SERUM - Using a serum is the correction step in your routine. Like a vitamin for your skin, serums give a concentrated boost of ingredients that supercharge your results. Use a serum one to two times daily, or as directed by your esthetician.

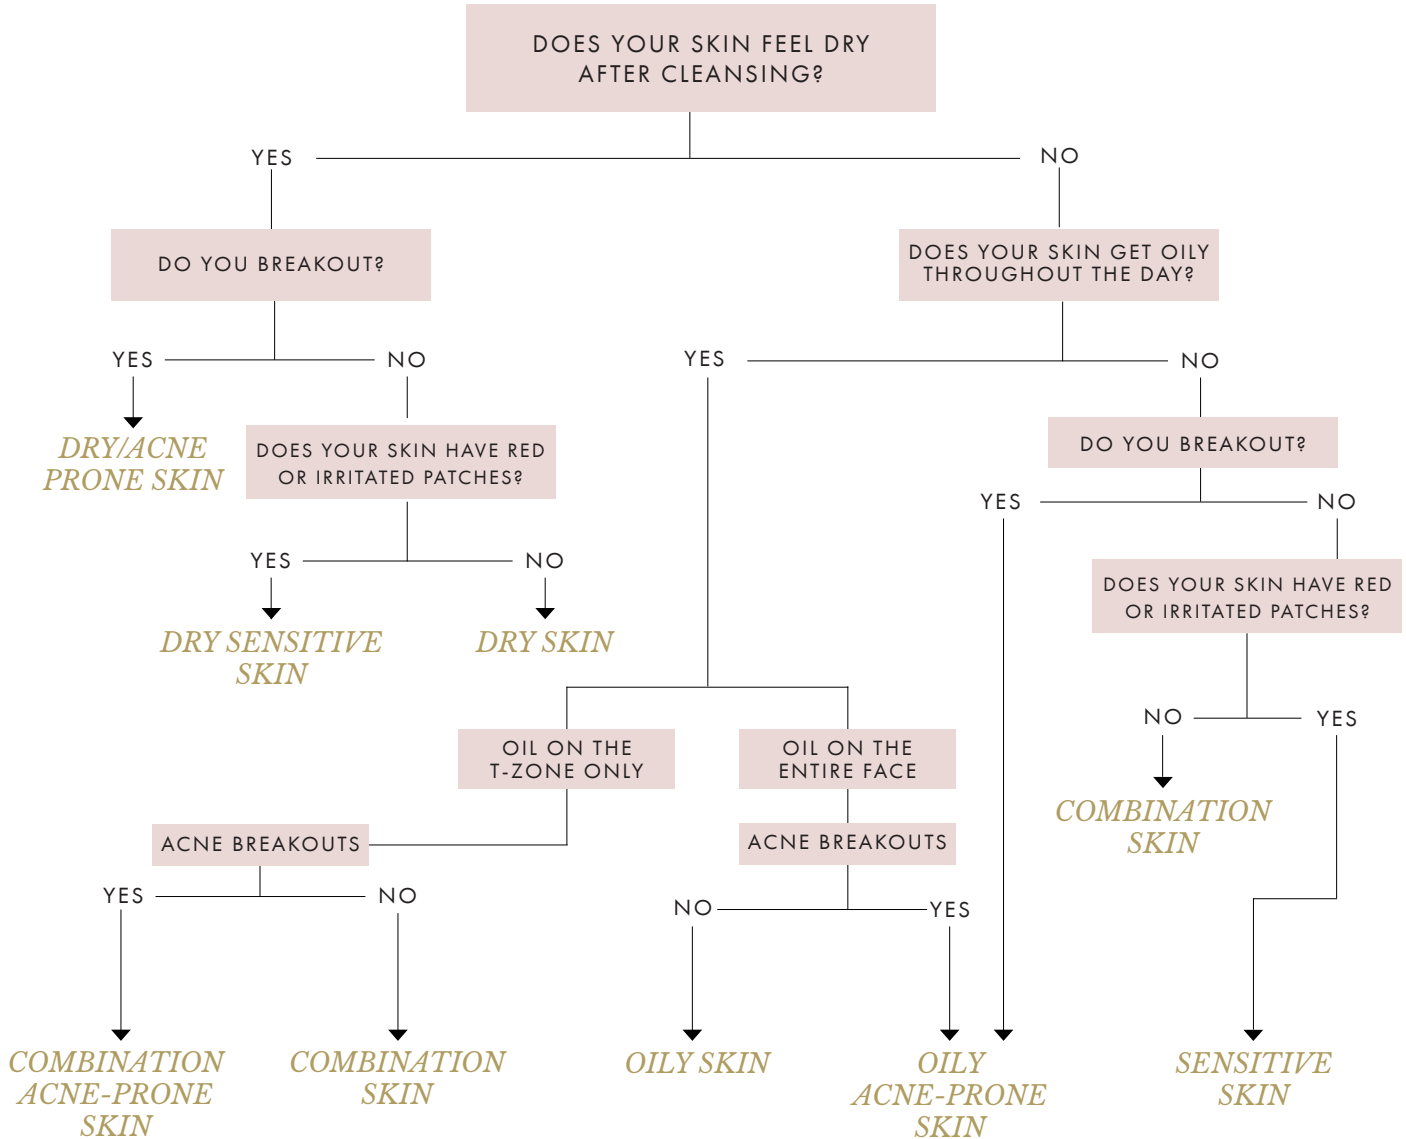

6

EYE CREAM - Using an eye cream is very important for this fragile area. Eye creams help to encourage drainage, decrease puffiness, diminish dark circles, and soften fine lines around the eyes. Use an eye cream morning and evening.

7

MOISTURIZE & PROTECT - Moisturizers help to protect the skin from environmental damages. They also seal in your skin's natural oils while adding extra moisture to make the skin feel plumped and hydrated. Use a moisturizer morning and evening. Sunscreen is your #1 defense against damage to your skin. Wear an SPF every day to keep skin youthful and safe from harmful rays. Add a lip moisturizer at night and as needed throughout the day to hydrate and protect delicate skin.
